

BUDGET 2025

Rory O'Farrell

MAIN POINTS

- Budget 2025 doesn't add to inflationary pressure, but longer-term issues have not been addressed.
- Put extra money into an national infrastructure agency.
- Hospitality should be helped by raising productivity, not VAT cuts
- More should be done on housing.

FISCAL STANCE IS APPROPRIATE

- Short-term constraints are easing
- Budget 2025 is neither expansionary nor contractionary
- Long term issues are building.

CONSTRAINTS ARE PHYSICAL RATHER THAN FINANCIAL

The economy is simmering, but not boiling over.

Low unemployment

Housing shortage

Loads of money!!!!

This Photo by Unknown Author is licensed under CC BY-NC

LABOUR MARKET IS BACK TO 2019

Beveridge Curve: The closer to the top left, the tighter the labour market

Source: CSO QLF01 EHQ16 and own calculations

Note: Vacancy rate and unemployment rate are as a share of labour force (ages 15+)

CORE INFLATION IS STABILISING

HICP - monthly data (annual rate of change)

Overall index excluding energy, food, alcohol and tobacco

Source: Eurostat prc_hicp_manr

twitter: r_o_farrell

RENTS ARE STILL INCREASING

Figure 4 – RTB Rent Index - Year-on-Year Rate of Change (%) in Standardised Average Rent in New Tenancies for Houses and Apartments – National

Source: RTB Rent Index Q1 2024

HOUSE PRICES TOOK OFF AGAIN

Figure 1.1: Residential Property Price Index 12 Month % Change

© Central Statistics Office, Ireland
<https://data.cso.ie/table/HPM09>

A MATTER OF JUDGEMENT

Should the government follow an expansionary or contractionary policy?

A NEUTRAL STANCE IS APPROPRIATE

Leave the budget deficit unchanged.

(E.g. by allowing revenue and expenditure to rise with output and inflation.)

CURRENT PLANS ARE LARGELY NEUTRAL

Short term ok (not very inflationary)

Long term structural issues

FISCAL STANCE – TEENY BIT CONTRACTIONARY

	2023	2024	2025
Underlying General Government Balance	-€2.9bn	-€6.3bn	€5.7bn
As % GNI*	-1.0%	-2.0%	-1.7%
Change in GGB as % GNI*

FISCAL STANCE – TEENY BIT CONTRACTIONARY

	2023	2024	2025
Underlying General Government Balance	-€2.9bn	-€6.3bn	€5.7bn
As % GNI*	-1.0%	-2.0%	-1.7%
Change in GGB as % GNI*		-1.0%

FISCAL STANCE – LARGELY NEUTRAL IN 2025

	2023	2024	2025
Underlying General Government Balance	-€2.9bn	-€6.3bn	€5.7bn
As % GNI*	-1.0%	-2.0%	-1.7%
Change in GGB as % GNI*		-1.0%	+0.3%

General government revenue excluding Apple case

An increase of 4.76% is in line with inflation and GNI* growth (IFAC agree)

2024 €134,590 million

2025 €140,995 million

From Table 13 of Budget 2025 Economic & Fiscal Outlook

General government expenditure

An increase of 4.75% is in line with inflation and GNI* growth (IFAC should agree)

2024 €125,335 million

2025 €131,290 million

From Table 13 of Budget 2025 Economic & Fiscal Outlook

BUT... FINANCES AREN'T SUSTAINABLE

2025 surplus: 'only' €9.7bn

We're getting €15.4bn in excess corporation tax

DoF estimate € 4.0bn from cyclical factors

Surplus 'should' be €19.4bn!

This is a major risk.

During Financial Crisis each €1bn of consolidation cost about 10,000 to 20,000 jobs.

Large international risks – US has a fiscal deficit (about 6% of their GDP)

WHAT I'D LIKE

Reform tax (Commission on Taxation and Welfare) and gradually close the €10 billion gap.

Create a national infrastructure agency that is funded upfront with the extra money we have.

HOSPITALITY

Overall, hospitality sector is stable, but not booming (unlike some other sectors).

We should aim to raise productivity rather than cut VAT.

HOSPITALITY SECTOR EMPLOYMENT JUST OFF ALL TIME HIGH

Employment in Accommodation and Food Sector

Accommodation & Food Service Activities Base 2015=100

Source: CSO MSI02

SOME ELEMENTS OF HOSPITALITY ARE IN LONG TERM DECLINE

Bar sales 1996 to 2024

Source: CSO RSBM1, RESM1, RSM03, RSM05 and own calculations

twitter: r_o_farrell

Some areas hit harder than others

- Accommodation vs food
- City centres vs suburbs
- Dublin vs Killarney

Money better place raising productivity rather than VAT cuts.

Reducing alcohol consumption has been official policy for a long time (and has worked!)

CONSTRUCTION

CONSTRUCTION EMPLOYMENT GROWTH HAS STALLED

Employment in Construction Sector

Source: CSO EHQ16

twitter: r_o_farrell

NEW DWELLING COMPLETIONS DOWN 5%

Figure 1: Number of new dwelling completions by type of dwelling
Q1 2016 - Q2 2024

© Central Statistics Office, Ireland
<https://data.cso.ie/table/NDQ01>

Central Bank forecast

- slight fall dwelling completions this year
- Increases 2025 onwards

SHARE OF EMPLOYMENT IN CONSTRUCTION IS LARGE FOR WESTERN EUROPE – NEED TO RAISE PRODUCTIVITY

Share of employment in construction of buildings - 2023

Source: Eurostat Ifsa_egan22d and own calculations

twitter: r_o_farrell

CONCLUSION

From a macro perspective:

- This budget doesn't make things particularly worse
- Does little to fix the problems that have been growing

Put the extra money into an infrastructure fund

Construction shouldn't be stalling.

BONUS SLIDES!

WE SHOULD HAVE AN UNDERLYING SURPLUS

Underlying deficit

Source: Department of Finance Budget 2025 Economic & Fiscal Outlook Table 13

From 2015 to 2023 in windfall corporation tax receipts IFAC estimates we got €44bn.

This roughly equals the bank bailouts.

PLANNING PERMISSION DOWN

Number of dwelling units granted planning permission down
2.4% in Quarter 2

STEADY WAGE GROWTH

Average hourly earnings (year on year change)

Source: CSO EHQ03 and own calculations